

Volunteer at Solihull Libraries

Volunteering is a great way to help your community and make a real difference to people's lives. It is also personally rewarding – helping you to stay active, meet new people, grow in confidence and provide a sense of achievement.

There are volunteering opportunities available at most of Solihull's libraries. No specific experience is needed for most activities, and we work with you to match your free time with the needs of your local library. We use volunteers to complement existing staff roles.

Opportunities include:

- Selecting books for home delivery
- Giving visitors basic training to help them to access computers and tablet devices
- Helping to run the Summer Reading Challenge
- Contributing towards building a local history database
- Organising a reading group
- Helping visitors to use self-service kiosks

What we provide to you:

Flexible time commitments

- Something to suit people of all ages
- Volunteer expenses
- Guidance and support from staff and other volunteers
