Add food colouring to the boiling water and then pour into dry mixture
Stir continuously until it becomes sticky and dough like
Allow it to cool and then remove from bowl and knead it for a couple of minutes or until stickiness has gone
If it remains sticky gradually add flour as you knead it

Gloop

Mix an amount of either of the following with water:

Corn flour
Custard powder
Blancmange

Put it in a shallow container and try and pick it up, vary the consistency by adding more powder. Mix with hands or spoon.

Jelly Play

Jelly packets – different flavours

Boiling water

Moulds/containers

Small toys to put in jelly OR add pieces of fruit or sweets and try to get them out using their mouth.

Make jelly up as per packet instructions, once its dissolved put the toys into the mix and let it set (in fridge)

Once it's set – play time!!!

Messy food ideas

Flour hide and seek – hide raisins, smarties, marbles, small toys in a tray of flour and get them to find them.

Ice cubes – make different flavours using squash

Squirty cream – draw patterns on plates, make faces, squirt on hands or dab onto nose.

Painting ideas

Use sponges, hands, feet, fingers and other objects to make marks i.e toys with wheels on them.

Potato prints – cut patterns into the potato and use as a stamp

Finger painting with sand – add sand to paint for a rougher texture.

Plate game

Using the 'Dinner Winner' plate put a different food item on each square (you may want to start with 1-2 and build up) – using the dice roll to see if the item should be sniffed, licked, bitten, touched, all or passed. Use 'choice time' as a motivator. Make it fun and join in

Water and Sand play

- Playing in the sand, burying objects and then finding them
- Start adding water to make the sand different consistency
- Try adding enough water to submerge the sand – push hands down into sand and then pull out so sand is washed off. Try putting feet into water/sand mixture and scrunching toes up in it.

Water and bubble play

At the sink (or in the bath) make lots of bubbles using washing up liquid/soap – blowing bubbles with wands, blowing it off hands, place on nose and try to blow it off, make bubble beards too.

Add food colouring to the bubble mix, get a straw and blow colourful bubbles onto paper to make pictures (careful not to suck the mixture into your mouth as it won't taste nice).

Pour a shallow amount of coloured water/bubble mix onto a tray and then lay a piece of paper over to make patterns.

Playing 'Hangman' with a gingerbread/biscuit man.

Buy (or make if feeling creative) a gingerbread or biscuit shaped man.

Think of a 6 letter word and get person to say letters – each wrong one they have to bite off a piece of the biscuit man (i.e. leg, leg, arm, arm, head and finally body).

You could even make sandwiches or toast and then cut the man shape out of the sandwich with a person shaped cutter to play the game with instead (to show that sandwich still tastes the same if in a different shape).

Sniffing/tasting games

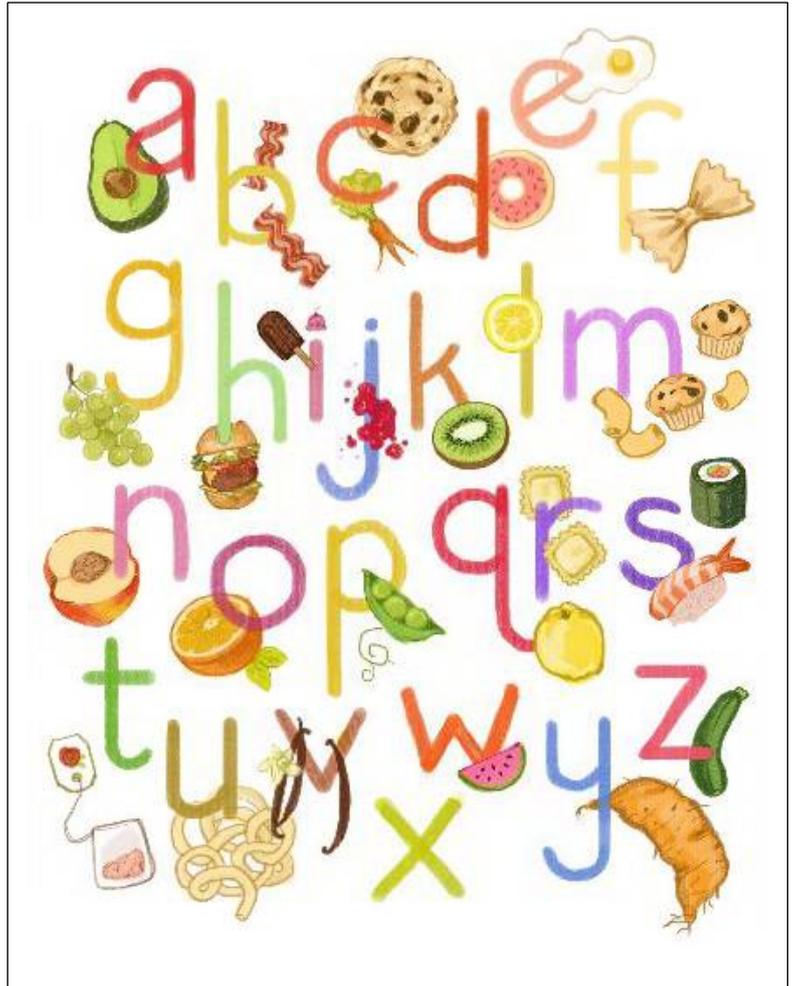

Get a range of different foods (cheese, jam, marmite, fruit, onions etc) and put in a small tub so the person cannot see what it is. Lift the lid and get them to sniff the contents and guess what it is.

If they cannot guess by smell try dipping a small spoon into it (only has to be a tiny amount) and get them to taste.

Alphabet food

Try introducing foods using the alphabet such as trying foods that come in this form – alphabet spaghetti, potato shapes, , get your child to name foods in alphabet order, for example:

Apple
Banana / Bourbon biscuit / bread
Carrot / Custard Cream / Chips / Chicken / cheese
Digestive biscuit
Eggs
Fruit
Grapes / Gravy
Haribo sweets
Ice cream
Jam / Jelly / Juices
Kiwi / Kale
Lemon curd
Mash
Oranges / onions
Peppers / peas
Quiche
Raspberries
Strawberries / Sausages / spaghetti
Tuna / tea cakes
U
Vienetta
Waffles /
X
Yoghurt
Z

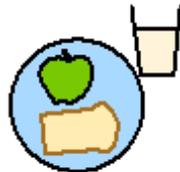

Try cutting/arranging food into letters to spell their name.

If your child likes foods cut in a certain way, try and challenge this and cut it differently – get them to try it in the new shape so they know it still tastes the same.

Food Challenge!

breakfast

Lunch

Dinner

It is important that we eat lots of different types of foods to make our body healthy.

Our diet should include:

Vegetables

Fruit

Protein

Carbohydrates

Dairy – full of Calcium to make our bones strong!!

Try at least 1-3 new foods per week – write down if you like, dislike it or unsure; you may have to try it a few times to properly decide!

The following ideas will help you try new foods:

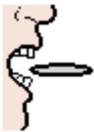

Touch it! See what it feels like – play with it, poke it, squash it, splat it, rub between your hands.

Sniff it! See if you think it has a yummy smell to it.

Lick it! If you're not sure try a small amount at first.

Take a bite! Try a bigger amount as our tongues pick up on different tastes on different areas:

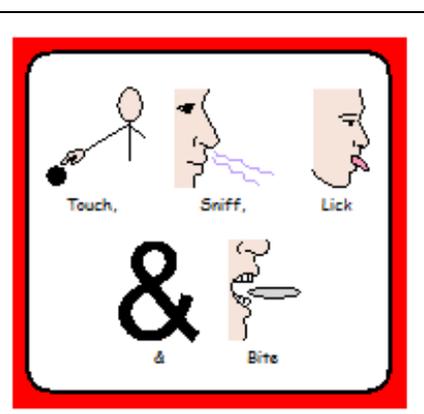

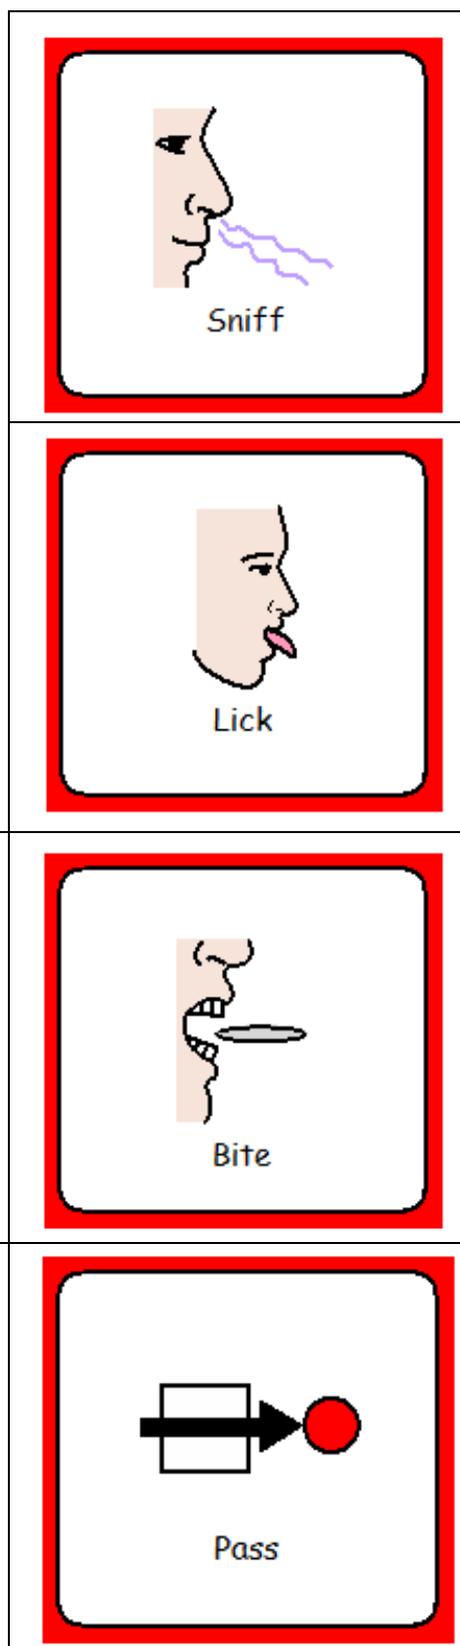

Have a plate next to your meal so if you do not like something or are unsure you can move it away.

Keep a food diary of all the new foods you try to help you remember!

Game Die – make into a cube and play with your food!
